SOUTH AMERICA.

Venezuelean Congress.

A correspondent has furnished the American Farmer (published at Baltimore) with a partial account of the installation of the Republican Congress at Angostura, in Venezuela, which we insert below. A full detail of these interesting proceedings, is daily expected from our correspondent in the same quarter, which we shall also lay before the public: [Washington City Gaz.

Angostura, Feb. 16, 1819.

Yesterday was the commencement of an auspicious era for Venezuela, if the congress and people have wisdon and integrity enough to improve the occasion. I shall briefly relate the civil occurrences, and leave you to judge for yourself.

Having received a courteous invitation from Gen. Bolivar to attend at the solemn ceremony of installing the congress, in the palace of government. I was at the rendezvous at the appointed hour, and accompanied the General and other officers to the capitol, where the members were drawn up in the passage, in open ranks, facing inwards, to receive him,(the supreme chief). They passed into the hall and took their seats, salutes being fired then, as well as at sun-rise, or rather at the hour of sun-rise, for it was rainy and cloudy, and Sol invisible.

After a short pause the supreme chief addressed the assembly in an elaborate discourse on government, and on the peculiar condition of Venezuela; taking a survey of free states, ancient and modern. His enunciation was clear and distinct; his action correct, but his voice somewhat feeble.—The political institutions of the United States he regarded as singularly fortunate in escaping, so far, the common ruin of free governments, and promising to be lasting.

This happy exemption was owing to the habits in which the North American people were nurtured and educated. They had been born in a free state. Little of this he feared was applicable to Venezuela, where different casis formed a compound, uniting the mingled blood of America, Spain, and Africa; and he submitted his plan of a proper constitution of government. England seemed to afford finished models in the three forms or compartments of government; in the executive, or monarchical part as in the aristocracy. He strongly declaimed against a federal system for Venezuela, while complimenting the United States extravagantly. In short the drift of his argument was to recommend a permanent senate, for one thing; insisting on the policy and justice of rewarding the benefactors of their country, or the military officers, by seats in it—for them, their heirs!

The abominable chaos, under the name of laws, which are so fruitful of mischiefs, impunity, vexation, and crime, he described very properly, he also urged the necessity of freedom of religion, and of the press and of encouraging education.

I do not pretend to great exactness or particularity; but so far as I give a sketch I am sufficiently accurate I think. As soon as possible I shall obtain a copy of this document.

As he concluded, with viva el congresso! another salute was fired, drums beat, and bells were tolled.

Dr. F. A. Zea was then called to the chair: Gen. B. however, officiated to administer the oath of office to the members. Mr. Zea addressed the assembly from the chair, in a pertinent and elegant speech extempore. He adverted to the history of other states in the formation of their governments, comparing, or contrasting their situation with that of Venezuela. He passed a flattering panegyric on the magnanimity and disinterestedness of General Bolivar, justly extolling his more recent act, as an example to every patriot, &c. or soldier.

Gen. Bolivar rose after the President of Congress (ad interim) had finished his remarks, to reply, on behalf of the officers more particularly, to the observations made. He renounced for himself, then and forever any and every civil trust. When peace should be established he would become a private citizen, and never be any thing more.

When he retired, viva el General Bolivar! resounded through the assembly.

The concluding declaration gave surprise to every one whom I heard make mention of the subject. But, whatever his past conduct may have been, and there are various opinions concerning it, his last political act is unequivocal. He must be disinterested, since he precludes himself from filling any civil station. This, I say, caused much wonder and conversation. Let the historian of this revolution weigh his merits and failings impartially, and award him that quantum of censure or applause, which is his due. For myself, though previous information had strongly biassed me against Gen. Bolivar, as a man of inordinate ambition, and sinister management, I had rather praise than blame any man if truth permit. I am, at any rate, so pleased with events, that I dismiss censorious inquiries into causes.

All the proceedings of congress were marked by decorum. To day, during a few minutes that I attended the debates, I perceived their extreme want of rules for conducting the business of the house. They adopted a proposition or resolution investing Gen. Bolivar with executive powers of President pro tem. and appointing him generalissimo of the army. A committee is named to draw up rules of debate, &c. another to consider and report on Bolivar's project of a constitution for Venezuela.

Accounts from the armies leave room for doubt and apprehension, as I am sorry to state. The enemy, whose policy it is to defeat Paez before he is reinforced, have crossed the Apura and Aranca. They have received reinforcements to a considerable extent, if we may rely on their statements. The boldness of Morillo's movements is the strongest evidence of it. Should Paez be defeated, (which Jove forbid) the country has yet to pass through a second ordeal. Things are at a crisis. However, near 500 men have arrived from England, and as many more are expected daily, besides another expedition of 1500 or 2000 men from the same quarter. They cannot come too soon: But no temporary reverse can prevent the independence of the country, sooner or later.

I therefore hope that the government of the United States will manifest their good disposition, without delay. We can now our friendship without going to war with Spain, and we ought to befriend the congress and patriots of Venezuela.

February 19.

News from the army of the 7th instant, state that General Paez had surprized and defeated a corps of 600 of the enemy's cavalry, killing 400 of them. One army or the other it would seem must be destroyed. The enemy cannot support himself in his present position, near the Aranca, (in crossing which he lost 500 men:) Paez's cavalry hovering round him, have driven off the cattle in front, and set fire to the grassy plains in his rear. His (P's) infantry, and a corps of artillery, are posted on the Island before Urbana, formed by two branches of the Aranca, disembouging their waters into the Oronoco, with the latter of course. It is the enemy's best play to attack Paez before he is reinforced—and it is the order of Bolivar to P. not to come to a general action until he be reinforced, but to take advantage of circumstances.

February 21.

Accounts are received from Trinidad of four transport ships, belonging to Col. English's expedition, having touched there and sailed for Margarita, with seven or eight hundred men.

Port of Spain, (Trinidad,) March 12.

I arrived here this morning from Angustora, where prospects are encouraging.—Certainly the Patriots must triumph this campaign. English reinforcements, (chiefly Irish however) will turn the scale unalterably. Roscio, Pallacios, Cadiz, &c. are struggling for the establishment of a free constitution. I know not what success they may have. If they make a good beginning, they do enough for the present. As the people advance in information, they will improve their fabric, poco a poco, and that is all we ought in reason to expect. I hope, under all circumstances, our government will act liberally; depend upon it our policy consists in so acting.

Ere this reaches you, though I send it via St. Thomas, for speed, you will have heard of Paez's success over Morillo. A descent from Margarita, on the coast and a junction of forces under good officers, amongst them is colonel Needham, newly re-appointed, will complete the reign of the Godos in Venezuela, by May-day, at farthest I hope.

St. Thomas, March 20.

By a letter I received this morning, dated Margarita 16th, I am advised that the progress of the royal army under Morillo had been checked by general Paez, having already sustained a loss of 600 men. They were retiring from the Apura, and were closely pursued, so that there is every reason to expect that Paez will give a good account of them. The fleet had sailed from Angostura a few days previous to the date of my letter, in pursuit of a Spanish squadron, which had been in that neighborhood. Admiral Biron had resumed the command. a circumstance of much importance to the success of their operations, as Jolie, during the time he commanded, had conducted himself in such a manner as not only to render him hated, but is to be feared, the cause in which he was engaged, unpopular.

The Buenos Ayrean brig of war Irresistable, captain, Daniels, had arrived at Margarita, with several of his prizes, amongst them his catholic majesty's late brig Neride, of 18 guns, and 140 men which he had captured after an action of 14 minutes.

Commodore Daniels has handed to the editors of the Baltimore Patriot, the following for publication, and requests all editors of public papers to give it publicity.

PROCLAMATION.—[Translated;]

Quarter General at Juan Griego, in the Island of Margarita, this 29th day of March 1819.

Juan Bautista Arismendi, of the orders of Liberators, and General in chief in the army, &c.

Be it known, that on the 15th day, inst. entered this port, the armed brig Irresistable, of the Oriental Republic of La Plata, with the Spanish brig of war Neyrede, as tender—the latter having been captured by the Irresistable, in lat. 8; S. long. 30, while sailing from Cadiz to Rio Janeiro. That on the 21st, the privateer La Criola, from the Republic of La Plata, anchored at this port, and on the night of the 24th both crews mutined, took possession by force of the Irresistable, and arresting the officers who were on board, made their escape with the vessel, in spite of the firing from the Criola, and the batteries from the land; and though the commander, Daniels, happening to be on shore, used every effort and diligence to appease the mutineers, and to prevent their escape, it was impossible to obtain it; for assisted by the place, and the vessels in the harbor, he manned the brig Neyrede (now the Congress of Venezuela) had pursued the robbers without effect, owing to their superiority of sailing and difference of time; in consequence of which, the said commander, Daniels, was obliged to put back, after taking up the officers and men, whom the mutineers had landed on the coast, as adverse to their plans of piracy and plunder.

Such iniquitous conduct sets the criminals out of the protection of the laws; and to prevent in so much as possible, their future depredations, under the pretence of commision to cruize from the republic of Venezuela. I do hereby declare that the said brig Irresistable has no commission from the Oriental Republic of La Plata, since the 24th of this month, nor from the republic of Venezuela; and that he ought to be considered as a pirate, and sailing under no authority and sanction from any government whatever, and as such to be captured by the forces public and private of the state. And to the friendly and nautral nations. I do farther entreat and desire to detain the said brig if found, and to order him to this Island, here to proceed in its case with the severity of the laws. Given at Juan Griego in the island of Margarita, under the seal of the Admiralty, and countersigned by my Secretary.

Signed,

JUAN BAUTISTA ARRISMENDI.

THE ARCHBISHOP OF JERUSALEM.

The Syrian Archbishop of Jerusalem, Gregorio Pietro Giarve, has lately arrived in this country, and has taken up his residence in Frith-street, Soho. He is in the dress of the Apostle St. James, with the blue turban, a loose robe, &c. His long beard, and venerable and apostolic appearance, attract great notice, and excite much curiosity. We learn that the Archbishop's object in visiting England is to solicit assistance, and obtain some of the machinery, to establish a printing press at Mount Lebanon, for the purpose of preparing, and there distributing correct editions of the Sacred Scriptures in the Syriac Language. Although Mount Lebanon is under the dominion of a Christian Prince, nearly all the rest of Syria is governed by, and composed of Turks. Not a few of these have lately become Christians, for the fanatic fury of their faith seems every day abating. To gain many, very many, from Mahometanism over to Christianity, little more seems wanting than to distribute copies of the Bible among the Syrian Turks, in their own language; but to prepare such works has been found heretofore generally impracticable. The editions of the Bible printed in this country, for most parts of the East, have, from their total inaccuracy, been utterly useless. We believe, we may venture to say, without any offence to the learned, that none but a native ought to attempt to be the corrector of a Syriac Press. A single mistake in the placing of a point, may make the same word convey a meaning the most ludicrous, for what the author intended to be of a precisely opposite character. As the Archbishop undertakes himself to be the corrector of the press about to be established, and as the learned Prelate has travelled far, relying on the liberality and Christian feeling of England, we sincerely trust, that the stranger's reception here may be such as his sacred mission and character eminently deserve.

FULMINATING SILVER.

Chymists are too well acquainted with the tremendous energy of this preparation, to make any comment of its powers necessary. Unhappily, however, it is now made a subject of amusement; it is prepared for sale by those who know nothing of it, except as a nostrum, and it is bought by others who have not even this degree of knowledge. It is true it is put up in small quantities, in the little toys called torpedoes, and, if exploded one by one, they will ordinarily do no harm, but as they fall into the hands of children, we can never be secure that they will be discreetly used.

A very severe accident, from the unexpected explosion of this substance, occurred some years since in the aboratory of Yale college (see Bruce's journal, vol. 1, p. 163.) And, notwithstanding that this occurrence was well known in New-Haven, the same accident, only under a severer form, has again occurred in that town.

A man who had bought the secret of making fulminating silver, had prepared as much as resulted from the solution of one ounce and a half. Apparently, in a great measure, unaware of the nature of the preparation, he had placed it, unmixed with any thing, in an earthern plate, which stood on a table; his wife and children being around, he sat down to distribute the powder upon several papers which he had prepared for the purpose. Sand and shot are mixed with the powder in the papers for the purpose of giving momentum, and of producing attrition when the torpedoe is thrown, in order to ensure its explosion.—Probably also the sand, looking not very unlike the powder, may be intended to screen it from view, and thus to preserve the secret, should the papers be opened.—The unhappy man no sooner touched the fulminating silver with a knife, than it exploded with its usual violence; the table was split in two; blood issued copiously from every part of his face, not from wounds, for it does not appear that the fragments hit him, but, according to the opinion of a competent judge, the blood was actually forced through the pores of the skin by the power of the explosion, which very nearly destroyed his eyes. He suffered immensely, but at the end of eight months, sees partially with one eye, but the other is nearly, if not quite destroyed.

Should not the tampering with such dangerous substances by ignorant people be prevented by law?

In a late lecture in the laboratory of Yale college, some fulminating silver, on the point of a knife, was in the act of being put upon a copper plate connected with one pole of a galvanick battery in active operation, the other pole was not touched by the experimenter; but it seems that the influence which was communicated through the floor of the room was sufficient instantly to explode the powder, as soon as the knife touched the copper plate; the knife blade was broken in two, and one half of it thrown to a distance among the audience.

Recently also, we are informed, in one of the foreign journals, that a man in England, who accidentally trod on a quantity of fulminating silver, had his foot nearly destroyed by the explosion.

A DANDY CAUGHT IN A GOOSE HOUSE.

The following roguery we copy from the Newark Centinel of Monday.

On Wednesday evening last, a most curious and daring burglary, was effected in one of the public houses in the north part of this town. The landlady about retiring for the night, discovered that a part of her own as well as her daughter's wearing apparel was gone. She communicated the fact to her husband, who posted off to the Newark bridge to enquire if any person had passed with a bundle. Being answered in the negative, the landlord hastened home, and with a lighted lantern went to his stables to examine there. Here he discovered a person richly clad in woman's apparel, with a silk coat on as an outer garment—and a little way off a bundle nicely tied up with a lady's bonnet and lace veil, ready for a journey. Her ladyship soon moved from her couch of hay; and though ordered to stop mounted the fence like a deer. The landlord thinking this Adonis, was not without her beau, secured the bundle as well as the lace veil and bonnet, and gave the alarm to those in the house. For a time no one was seen or further discovery made. On opening the bundle it was found to contain the clothes of a man who some weeks previous had been ostler to the tavern keeper. The streets were patroled for some time in vain, till the crash of a rear garden fence proclaimed that some one was passing; thither the landlord hasted, and had again the sight of a person dressed in silk apparel, whom he saw enter a back door of a certain dwelling house. Entrance was demanded but for some time refused. At last the door was opened, and in conjunction with several neighbors, search was made but in vain, except finding a silk coat in the cellar. An escape seemed impossible as the house was literally surrounded. On the point of giving up all further search, a goose pen was discovered aside the dwelling house. One of the company suggested examining that place. The family protested against disturbing the pen, as there were two geese setting there. The goose house was examined—and who was here? The feathered race made no cry against their nocturnal visitors. But here was the Dandy himself, who entreated for mercy. Whilst in the cellar he had put on a coat and pantaloons, over his silks; and by removing a stone in a cellar wall got into the goose pen, and by replacing the stone excited no suspicion. The parties went off to a magistrate's, and on unstripping our modern Dandy, there were found on him a lady's linen, two flannel petticoats, one cambric and two silk gowns.—The hero of the story is named James Mitchel, a Scotchman. He confessed the theft, and was sent to prison for trial. The person who harbored Mitchel, has given bail for his appearance at the next sitting of the court.

Gunston for Sale.

THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaister acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania.—I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain: being bounded on 3 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole: it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary outhouse, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land is in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might,) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abound with wild fowl, particularly canvass backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment.—Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.

September 4 GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.

THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence.—The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables.—There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutricious as the best timothy or clover.—With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow.—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq. or

Vaccine Institution.

THE small pox having appeared in Alexandria, such persons as have been vaccinated by the subscriber are invited to attend at his office, on St. Asaph-street, between Prince and Duke streets, to have their arms examined. Indigent persons are also invited to the same place for the purpose of being vaccinated. The subscriber will attend at his office every day in the week except Sunday, from 7 o'clock until 10 in the morning, for the purpose of receiving them.

He proposes also to be less particular than heretofore in the investigation of their claims to the benefit of the institution, as may respect their indigence and length of residence in town. The subscriber earnestly requests all such citizens as may be acquainted with persons liable to contagion, to send them without delay as above directed, where they will be served effectually and gratuitously.
